

POISON PEN LETTER STIRS COUNTY; U. S. OFFICIALS IN PROBE

Anonymous Missive Is Directed at Candidacy of Tiffany for Sheriff

U. S. MEN INVESTIGATE

Investigation by U. S. postal officials who seek to locate the writer of an anonymous letter viciously attacking Lester T. Tiffany, Republican nominee for sheriff of Lake county, continued with renewed interest today as the Lake Forest chief of police joined forces with the federal men in the probe which started Tuesday following the receipt of the letters in Lake county.

The letters, mailed at the central post office in Chicago at 5:30 Monday night, have been received here by county officials, newspapers, and voters throughout the county. Authorities have already obtained clues that may lead to the identity of the sender, it was announced by federal secret service operatives who were working on the case within a few hours after the arrival of the letters in Lake county.

Startling, Libelous Charges

On account of the libelous nature of the contents of the letter, it has not appeared in the public prints. Charging that Tiffany spent enormous sums on his primary campaign for an office of small salary, the letter also hints of an alliance with Al Capone, and urges the defeat of Tiffany at the November election. "This is not in the interest of any candidate," the letter states.

Believe Writer Lake County Person

"That letter was written by a Lake county person," Chief Tiffany is quoted as saying in the Waukegan Times. Tiffany was in Chicago yesterday conferring a second time with government operatives, and he is hopeful of making an arrest and getting a conviction of the guilty person.

Libelous matter is unmailable. The poison pen missive received here Tuesday was not only a violation of the postal rulings, but the state laws have also been violated, and the sender of such a letter, if caught, could be punished by both fine and imprisonment, according to State's Attorney A. V. Smith.

SUPERVISOR IS AUTHORITY IN DROWNING CASES

County Board Appropriates $1,000 to Be Used in Recovering Bodies

Appropriation of $1,000 to be used for expenses in connecting with drowning cases was recommended in a resolution and passed at the September session of the Lake County Board of Supervisors. The supervisors of the township in which a drowning occurs is given authority to use from the appropriation in whatever manner he considers to be the most efficient and economical.

Lake county being more or less a summer resort locality and containing 52 or more lakes, many drownings occur here every season, the resolution states. For many years the placing of responsibility for the recovery of drowned bodies has been a problem. The sheriff's office is usually called upon to aid in emergencies of this kind, causing added expense to the county. It is believed that the cases can be handled more efficiently if taken care of by the local supervisor. For that reason the appropriation was recommended by Supervisor William Rosling.

Fire Departments Aid

Volunteer fire departments in close proximity to the lakes have been willing to equip themselves and act in emergencies of this kind, and it was recommended by the supervisors that firemen be given preference in taking charge of cases of this nature.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Earl Somerville arrived Tuesday from Detroit, Mich., to spend a few days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Somerville. Miss Myrtle Haynes and friend of Chicago spent the week-end visiting home folks here.

THREE THOUSAND HUNTERS HERE FOR SEASON OPENING

Many Arrests, No Serious Accidents on the Opening Day

An army of hunters, conservatively estimated at over 3,000, was on hand at sunrise yesterday morning, the official time of beginning the open season on migratory birds. The familiar roar of thousands of guns turned loose at Grass Lake greeted the ears of Antioch residents at sunrise and there was no doubt the hunting season was on. Old timers around the lakes declare the crowd on hand for the opening day was the greatest ever.

The arrest of 76 men for various violations was reported late yesterday, most of these being for firing before sunrise.

Only a few minor injuries were reported. One man came to Antioch in the early morning, suffering from the effects of a stray shot that had struck him in the eye.

The dry season will have a tendency to slow up the sport this season, wardens say, as there are many places, usually the habitat of wild ducks, greatly in need of water and unless needed rains come shortly the hunting season here is likely to be of short duration.

Ralph F. Bradford, director of the State Department of Conservation, asked hunters to lay down their shotguns on Wednesday each week. Bradford suggested that the sport would profit as it would give ducks frequent rest periods and more time for feeding.

Lake Villa Man When Intoxicated Careens Into Kenosha Hayrack

Bits of hay scattered along the highway near Kenosha bear testimony to the tipsy driving of Edward Kelley, 30, of Lake Villa, a foreman on the Soo Line.

Kelley crashed into the hayrack of one William Lake of Kenosha, and continued on his meandering way to Antioch. Later he was arrested for operating a car while under the influence of liquor, and held in the Kenosha county jail until arrangements were made for the payment of his fine.

Horan's Stolen Car Is Recovered at Baraboo; Golden's in Chicago

Recovery of Constable Jim Horan's Chevrolet sedan that was stolen in Antioch Labor Day, was reported Monday from Baraboo, Wis. The sheriff of Sauk county phoned that the car was being held in that city.

Mike Golden's car, which had also been stolen on Labor day was recovered Tuesday in Chicago. Horan's and Golden's cars were two of the five stolen here Labor day.

REWARD POSTED FOR KILLER IN DEEP LAKE TORSO MURDER CASE

A. V. Smith Seeks Harry Higgins, St. Paul and Chicago Gangster

A reward of $500 for the capture of the woman who was severed of her limbs and burned at Deep Lake on March 8, was offered Saturday by State's Attorney A. V. Smith, who has received sufficient evidence to convict him through the findings of the "secret six".

An indictment for murder will be asked of the October grand jury against Higgins, St. Paul desperado and Chicago gangster, it was learned Friday.

According to the evidence secured by Col. Randolph's secret six of Chicago, the woman was Higgins' "girl" until she became too intimately acquainted with his activities in the underworld, at which time, he killed her in Chicago, severed her head and limbs with a butcher's cleaver, and carried the body to the Deep Lake cottage, which he set on fire.

Higgins has served a sentence at Stillwater, Minn., and is known throughout the middle west as a crook. He has operated under several names, it was revealed. Although he was said by some of his former associates, whom the police rounded up, to have been killed, authorities believe him to be in hiding somewhere in the United States.

Word was received today of the death of Mrs. Ella Richards of Lake Villa, mother of C. F. Richards. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock from her home at Lake Villa.

PREGENZER AWARDED STATE CONTRACT FOR SALINE R. PROJECT

Work of Straightening River to Relieve Unemployment Near Harrisburg

Ray Pregenzer and Son were awarded the big state contract for straightening and excavating the Saline river near Harrisburg, Ill., the state department of public works and buildings announced at Springfield recently.

It is expected that a number of Harrisburg men will receive employment from the project, which will include the deepening of the river, excavation of 1,900,000 cubic yards of dirt, to prevent the harmful overflows, the removal of all the debris, and the clearing of timber from 25 acres of land on the north side of the river, for the right of way.

The contract price is set at $143,110.00.

LAKE COUNTY ROAD SECTION INCLUDED IN RECENT BIDS

Groves & Sons Are Low Bidders on Paving Section of Route 60

A section of 2.13 miles of paving on Route 60, southeasterly from Fox Lake, was included in the road-building bids received recently by the Department of Public Works and Buildings at the office of the Division of Highways, in Springfield.

S. J. Groves & Son, Minneapolis contractors, submitted the lowest bid, $93,647.96.

All bids will be carefully checked and the responsibility of the low bidders and their plans for carrying out the work investigated. When this work has been completed the Department will take formal action on the bids submitted.

The apparently successful bids, on the fifty-five separate projects, total approximately $4,000,000.

Mrs. George Kuhaupt is giving a luncheon and bridge party this afternoon at her home.

Supervisor Board Approves Plan For New Road

New Highway Across Chain of Lakes Will Prove Convenience

Designating the Grass Lake road as a state aid highway and planning for the building of a new 8-mile section of road connecting Indian Point with the Fox Lake golf club road west of Grass Lake, the Lake county board of supervisors at the suggestion of Supervisor William Rosling inaugurated a project at the September meeting that will mean much to western Lake and eastern McHenry counties.

Heretofore the Chain of Lakes could be crossed only at Channel Lake on the north and at the Pistakee bridge west of Fox Lake, on the south, making much of the region west of the lakes somewhat isolated from the eastern side. The building of a bridge of 800 feet in length and the construction of the new highway will be paid for out of state gas tax funds, according to Supervisor Rosling.

It is expected that the work will be started early next year.

GOV. EMMERSON ORDERS LARGE STATE EXHIBITS TO ANTIOCH CO. FAIR

Stratton Also Interested—Plans for Big Exhibition Near Completion

At the direction of Governor Emerson, the State Department of Agriculture will display the work of the State departments in two tents each 30 by 65 feet in size on the grounds at the Antioch Country Fair on October 9-10-11, which will be held at the High School Grounds at Antioch, Illinois.

Stratton Interested Also
Wm. J. Stratton, Secretary of State has also shown his interest by offering a special of $5.00 to the owner of the best male bird shown at the fair.

Considerable interest by both men and women is shown in preparing exhibits for the nine departments where $1,500.00 in premiums are offered. Liberal premiums are offered for displays in poultry and pet stock, farm products, fruits and vegetables, flowers and potted plants, domestic arts, pantry stores, fine arts, vocational agriculture, and education. Anyone interested in a premium booklet should write C. L. Kullil, secretary at Antioch, Illinois.

Many Lake County business men as well as many from Antioch are to have booths at the Fair displaying their various wares. Perhaps the largest exhibit on the grounds will be that of the International Harvester Co., under the management of C. F. Richards of Antioch. According to C. L. Kullil, the secretary, space is limited this year on account of the large exhibits and business men wishing space to advertise their wares should act quickly as most of it is taken.

Midway Attractions and Music
Final arrangements have been completed for a midway this week. There will be a merry-go-round, ferris wheel, and games of skill. Lunch stands will be opened continually. These will be operated by Antioch organizations. Clown and acrobatic performances will be given on the stage every afternoon and evening of the three days. Music will be furnished in the evenings.

Officials are bending all efforts toward a clean fair, continually keeping in mind the rising generation and building from the very foundation a solid structure in the form of a Country fair that will be a credit to the entire Metropolitan region of the Chicago area.

AUXILIARY ALSO ELECTS; PLAN JOINT INSTALLATION

Seymour M. Walance, Antioch clothier, was chosen commander of the local American Legion post at the election of officers Thursday night. Walance succeeds John L. Horan.

Other officers elected were: Alonzo Runyard, senior vice-commander; junior vice-commander, Wm. White; finance officer, Clarence Shultis; sergeant-at-arms, Russell Meade; and John L. Horan, member of the executive committee. Alonzo Runyard and Arthur Mapleshorpe, past commander, were chosen delegates to the county council meetings.

Selection of the appointive officers will be announced at the regular meeting in October.

Has Long Service Record

The military record of Commander-elect Walance began in 1915 with his enlistment in the Regular army with Co. I of the 6th U. S. Infantry. He went with his Company on the Mexican Punitive Expedition to the Mexican border, following Pancho Villa's raid on Columbus, New Mexico. The outfit was under the command of Gen. John J. Pershing.

A few months following America's entry into the world war saw Walance in France where he served with distinction for two years. After having attained the rank of First Sergeant he was detailed as instructor in open warfare at LaValbonne, Dept. of Ain, France. He was mustered out in September, 1919. Commander-elect Walance is a charter member of the post which has honored him with election to the chief executive officer.

Plan Joint Installation
Following election of officers for both the local Legion post and the Legion Auxiliary, a joint installation is being planned which will be in charge of the latter organization, it was announced. This meeting will be held in Guild hall and will occur at the first meeting following the regular October meeting.

Newly elected officers for the Legion Auxiliary post are: Mrs. Paul Chase, president; Mrs. John Horan, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Henry Reinke, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. S. M. Walance, treasurer; Mrs. Evan Kaye, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Harry Radtke, chaplain; Mrs. Paul Forris, organist. Mrs. Alonzo Runyard was appointed secretary. The retiring president is Miss Elizabeth Webb.

Legionnaires Attend Feed
A number of Antioch Post members attended the banquet at the Waukegan Hotel Monday evening. The purpose of the meeting, Legion men said, was to pep up the newly appointed committees and to secure a real co-operative spirit right at the start of the membership drive for 1931.

WAUKEGAN MAN IS HURT IN WRECK HERE

Is Taken to Hospital in Ambulance After Car Overturns

Earl Lewis of Waukegan was severely injured late yesterday afternoon when his car overturned near the Old Farm Inn north of Antioch. Dr. Warriner was called to the spot, and rendered aid until an ambulance arrived from Waukegan, and took him to the St. Theresa's hospital, where he is suffering from a broken ankle and injured back.

It is understood that the coupe was being driven by a woman at the time of the accident. She was cut about the face, although not seriously. The car was left near Antioch until today, when it was removed to Waukegan.

A minor accident occurred this morning south of Antioch, when a car, driven by an unidentified woman, collided with one of the Lake county gravel trucks. She was slightly scratched.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Nelson were Kenosha visitors yesterday.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

On another page of this week's issue of the Antioch News is an interesting "blue print" that should be read and studied by every citizen of Antioch.

Can you imagine the result a contractor would have on his hands if he attempted to proceed with the building of a house without the guidance of a scientific and proven blue print? Or, can you conceive what a confusion it would be and what a comedy of errors the structure would be if each workman went ahead with his work along his individual ideas instead of working as a unit of the force, guided by the blue print?

What a waste of expensive materials there would be; and what a waste of man power, and time, to say nothing of the fact that the building would not be fit for use, if it ever was completed.

So, in building Antioch (and every day that passes we are consciously or unconsciously building Antioch one way or the other) the first requisite is that we all, as workmen, understand the "blue print" by which we are working. It is a scientifically worked out blue print proven in each point.

Then when we have acquainted ourselves with the things we are working for, and understand them, let's fall in line with them and get them working for our benefit in Antioch.

There is need to not only know what to do, but to get this blue print working in Antioch and in order in the proper way. There are the leaders in each and every community who have even more specific and wider knowledge and who are guiding the work along the blue print lines. Work with them and we will achieve in the building of Antioch into a community that will be The One in Ten, with health and happiness for every one of us.

Be sure to give these specifications careful study, and analyze them from YOUR point of view and citizenship activities!

OTHER COMMUNITIES TAKE NOTICE

The possibilities of fire prevention were demonstrated in a practical way in Corvallis, Oregon, during the past summer. This little city has one of the most efficient fire departments in the United States.

For years it has been required to answer dozens of calls to put out grass and rubbish fires each season. In order to correct this nuisance, the Chief of the department prevailed upon the city council to pass an ordinance requiring a permit before grass and rubbish could be burned. The result was astonishing. Calls for this class of fires were practically eliminated.

Here is an object lesson which other communities can follow and save not only the damage done by fire but also the drain on the city treasury caused by the needless use of expensive fire-fighting equipment.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION

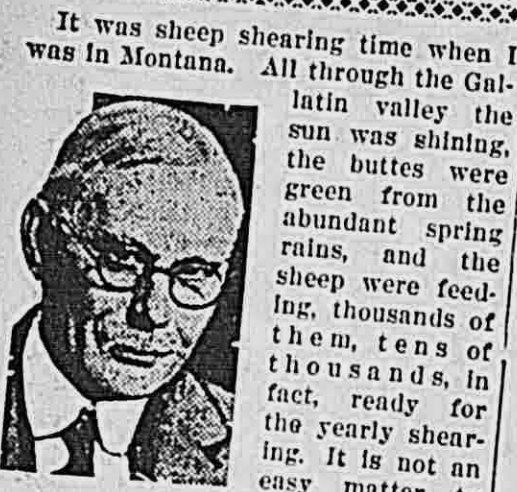

The president's prediction that the income tax slash granted for 1930 can probably be made again for 1931, plus the surprisingly low unemployment figure shown by the census, throws considerable new light on the business situation.

The unemployment figure of approximately 2,500,000 is an estimate, the official figures not yet being complete, but is regarded by the Census Bureau as probably accurate. The figure is not much higher than estimates for the prosperous years of 1927, '28 and '29 and is during the 1928 campaign.

If the national income is such that the income tax slash can be continued without putting the surplus in jeopardy, it seems reasonable to conclude that conditions are better than many calamity howlers would like us to believe.

FOLLOWING THE GOAT

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It was sheep shearing time when I was in Montana. All through the Galatin valley the sun was shining, the buttes were green from the abundant spring rains, and the sheep were feeding, thousands of them, tens of thousands, in fact, ready for the yearly shearing. It is not an easy matter to get them into the pens where the shearing is done. They listen reluctantly to the voice of the shepherd, but they are followers. If there is a leader among them without thinking, they will follow him anywhere. On one of the big ranches, I noticed a goat wandering about among the sheep, and I remarked on the fact.

"The goat is trained," one of the natives explained to me, "he can be led anywhere, and the sheep follow him, peacefully one after another without thought or questioning. It is quite easy."

Very much like human beings, these sheep, I thought. Most of us have a goat or two which we follow without working our brains at all.

Flora is smoking. Now she doesn't like it; she doesn't do it well, and she knows it is a dirty habit and not at all good for her nerves.

"Don't you smoke?" Della asks her. Della is the goat, coarse, vulgar, but the leader of the flock, the one who sets the pace, and gets all the rest into the corral. "How strange," she says, and laughs a little satirical laugh, and Flora drops into line and follows the goat.

The Glens did not taste liquor in pre-Volstead days. They had been brought up differently. It just wasn't respectable to have liquor about. Then things began to change a little. When they went out to one social affair or another there were cocktails served and the odor of gin in the air, and scarcely a social evening passed without a chance to get a shot or two of something stimulating. Respectable people, too, church members and the once-conservative members of society did not say no when the cocktail shaker came into the room. Well, what were the Glens to do? It would look queer and people would laugh if they hung back, so meekly and quite in line they followed the goat.

Lawton had never been a financial plunger. What modest sums he could gather together to invest he put into government bonds or the most conservative of securities. He was wise enough not to fall for any of the get-rich-quick schemes to which some of his friends became an easy prey.

When some smooth-tongued salesman expressed a willingness to let him in on something that would net him 15 per cent, Lawton shook his head. He would not know what to do with the money, he averred, if it came in that fast.

But stocks were booming, all his friends were taking a chance, and counting their profits. It was the opportunity of a lifetime, and he was being ridiculed for not being a sportsman, so Lawton followed the goat; he was taken into the corral. The bottom went out of the stock market and Lawton was sheared close to the skin like any other foolish sheep.

REMOVE ORIGINAL COLOR BEFORE THE DYE IS APPLIED

Easy Methods of Bleaching
Given to Aid in Securing
Best Results

Dyeing clothes gives one somewhat the same pleasurable feeling as when, on Easter eve, after the children are safely in bed, you surreptitiously dye the common hen egg gorgeous colors and paint cute little bunnies or chicks on the side. But there is also a similar disappointment if the garment does not take the dye well, as when a promising Easter dye fails to tint the egg properly.

To secure the best results in dyeing the color should be removed.

Removing Color From Silk

One of the simplest ways to remove the color from it is to boil it in heavy soap suds made with a mild soap dissolved in enough soft water to cover the garment. Sometimes it is wise to change the water two or three times as the color boils out.

The color is stripped or removed within 15 to 30 minutes. If it does not come out by this time, a small amount of bleaching powder such as sodium per borate (one-half teaspoon to one quart of water) may be added to hasten the color removal. A small amount of washing soda or washing powder will have the same effect.

Another way to remove color is to use the sulphur bleach. A box with a cover which can be sealed is necessary.

The Sulphur Bleach

Wet the cloth to be bleached, wring it to remove the excess of moisture and suspend the cloth in the box by hanging it on a cord stretched across like a clothesline. Place a sulphur candle on the floor of the box on an asbestos mat or in a pan containing a little water. Light candle, taking care that only the fumes, not the flames, reach the cloth. Then cover and seal the box and allow the eighth to bleach for 24 hours.

Removing Color From

Linens and Cotton

One of the easiest and best ways to strip the color is to boil the garment in a solution of water and washing soda, two or three tablespoons of the soda to every gallon of water. When the color is gone, a thorough rinsing in water is needed to remove the washing soda, which would injure the fabric if left in it.

An even quicker way to take the color from faded linens and cottons is to soak them in a bleaching solution.

Bleaching Solution

Dissolve in a gallon of water two to three tablespoons of bleaching powder, which may be purchased at any drug store. Strain the solution through a cloth to remove the sediment.

Soak the garment in the cold solution for an hour to remove the color. To hasten the bleaching, one part of vinegar to every 15 parts of solution may be added. Heating the solution also hastens the action and the materials to be bleached may be brought to the boiling point and then removed from the flame and allowed to stand five minutes, or until the color is gone.

Rinse the garments through several waters. In the last rinsing water, add one-half cup of vinegar for every gallon of water. Even though the color is not all gone, the garments will finish bleaching if spread on the grass. Precautions must be taken in rinsing to remove all traces of the bleaching powder from the fibers for it is likely to weaken them.

If You Have "Menu-itis", Just Try This Easy Cure

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

If "menu-itis" could be classified as a dangerous affliction, almost every woman would find her name enrolled on some hospital list.

The first symptom, usually, is a feeling that one cannot—simply cannot—plan another dinner! Ever! And matters soon progress steadily from this point until the complaint becomes chronic, and the whole family is involved in the suffering.

Of course, no two persons will arrange a menu in quite the same way, any more than different cooks will produce identical results from the same recipe. However, the best method for obtaining needed relief from this daily task of meal-planning is to allow someone else to furnish occasional suggestions. I am sure you will find the menu printed below is a welcomed, practical idea. The secret of its goodness lies in the somewhat different seasonings that are given the different foods. Try it for dinner tonight!

Small open sandwiches, often called "canapes," make excellent appetizers. They should be ready on small serving plates at each place when dinner is announced. The following simple appetizers are made from foods that you more than likely have on hand:

Cut rounds of bread, and toast on one side only. Butter the untoasted side and spread with a layer of thinly sliced Stuffed Spanish Olives. Then cover with a generous layer of chopped hard cooked eggs, moistened with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. Sprinkle with egg yolks that have been forced through a sieve and on the center of each, place a slice of the Olive.

Deviled Ham Loaf: 1 lb. raw ham fresh pork, ground together; 2 beaten eggs; 1/2 cup Tomato Ketchup; 1 teaspoon Prepared Mustard; 2 cups Rice Flakes; 1 1/2 teaspoons Evaporated Horseradish; 1/2 teaspoon green pepper, chopped; 2 small onions, chopped.

Combine ham and pork, eggs, Tomato Ketchup, Prepared Mustard, Rice Flakes, and Horseradish, which has been soaked for 10 minutes in 2 tablespoons cold water. Fry green pepper and onions in a skillet with butter until they are tender, but not brown, and add to the meat mixture. Form into a loaf and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees F.—for about one hour.

Succotash of Corn and Kidney Beans: 2 cups fresh corn cut from the cob; 1 medium can Oven Baked Kidney Beans; 1 green pepper, minced fine; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 egg, slightly beaten; grated cheese; buttered crumbs.

Mix corn with Kidney Beans, and add green pepper, salt and egg. Pour into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with grated cheese and buttered crumbs, and bake in a moderate oven for 30 to 45 minutes.

Chocolate Wafer Dessert:

Use a package of very crisp chocolate wafers, which may be purchased in almost any grocery. Whip 1/2 pint cream, add 2 table-spoons sugar, and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Put the wafers together with a thin layer of whipped cream to form a cylinder. Then coat the outside thinly with whipped cream. Allow to stand in the ice box (not in the freezing compartment) for two or three hours, and cut in diagonal slices.

Cape Coats Popular

ANTIOCH NEWS

The trend back to decidedly feminine modes of attire, is invading the coat realm also. And why not? Haven't girls always paraded before mirrors draping beautiful shawls, about their shoulders? This type is most becoming to the average figure, as it may or may not have the high belt. Antioch has always kept abreast of the fashions, and Antioch girls seem to approve of this also, judging from those appearing with this new design. The fall season will show these cape coats to be more and more popular. Although there seems to be no color especially dominant, red, green, blue, gray, tan or black, being considerably in use, probably the ever-fashionable tan, green and black are more frequently seen than the others. The model in the picture wears a very becoming Going shopping today, tomorrow or next week? Planning on purchasing a new dress? If so, what kind? I am not especially interested in the occasion for the dress—whether it is designed for a party or for school, office or street wear—but in the style of the garment; its lines, its color, its suitability to your type.

Women who have long been thought dull, plain and lacking in individuality have been known to suddenly astonish their friends by a sudden change in appearance, due entirely to a change in the style of dress.

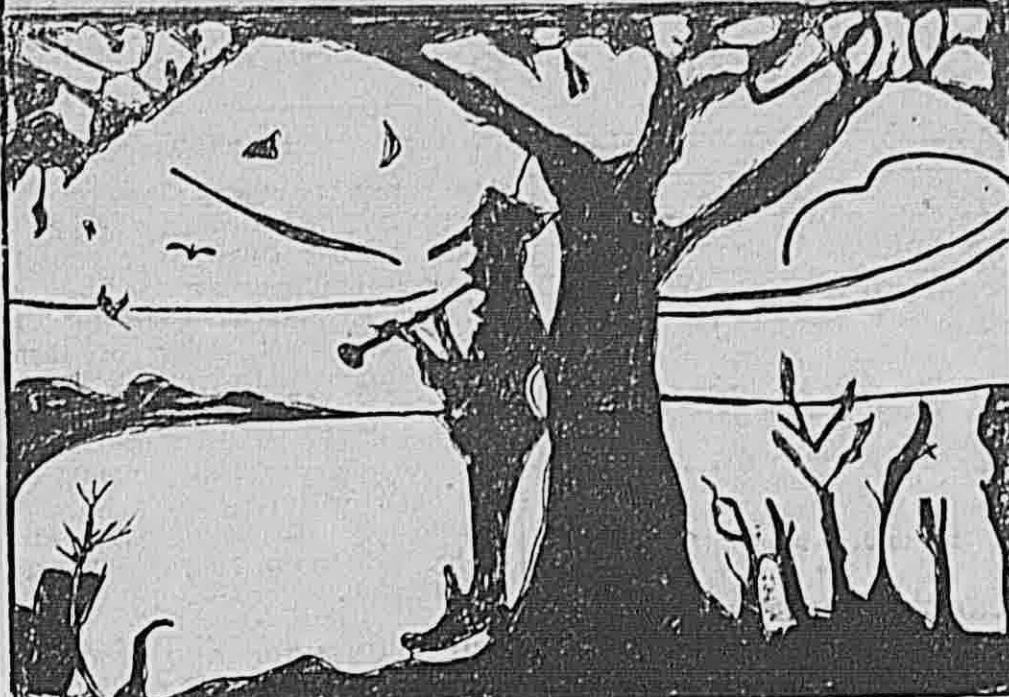

It is seldom desirable to cling too closely to one type of dress, as few of us are so badly proportioned that but one pattern will be suitable. Yet, there are general rules which we should follow in making our selection of clothes.

Glorify and emphasize your personality by your manner of dressing. This means to subordinate your clothing to you, yourself, unless your face is lacking in attractiveness of any kind or of slightest degree of character.

It is impossible to consider all the points necessary to selecting a becoming dress, so one must be considered at a time. Today color appropriateness will be discussed, as the color is among the first things which

TOPPY'S TRAVELS

Synopsis: Toppo leaves his home to follow his canary, Linny, who flies away. After an adventure with Mr. Frog, he makes friends with Toy, a little dewdrop, whom he saves from death. He attends school with him, and is promised a reward for learning so quickly. He is given a robe to go and see the queen in the mountain, but it is stolen by the Pillows. He chases them, and finds himself in a large room. Continue—

The size and beauty of the room made Toppo gasp. He had never even dreamed of such a palace. It was made of pearls and diamonds, lacy spider webs and frost, crystals and alabaster. Down the center of the room was a carpet strip of snowy soft feathers. On either side of the carpet were snowwhite maidens who swayed gracefully in rhythm to the faint strains of music.

As he tumbled into the room, the maidens suddenly seemed to freeze; then they ran toward the opposite end of the room, and stood huddled about a great white object. A voice seemed to swell through the room.

"Why comest thou hither without are considered in purchasing or making a dress.

There are three types of persons, with all their variations: the blond, the brunette, and the red-haired type.

Brunettes should be careful of using bluish tints, purples or pinks, as they tend to make the brown in the skin look darker.

Because too-bright colors cause a blond skin to appear faded, such colors as browns, yellows and red-yellows, should be avoided by blondes.

As the tittans vary so greatly, only a general rule can be given to them, which is to omit purplish rods and pinks which make the tones of the hair seem harsh.

(A more detailed list of appropriate colors will follow next week.)

the Royal Robe?"

Toppo felt so little in that magnificent room, that he was afraid to answer; he was sure his voice would sound too faintly for the great white thing to be heard so he said nothing. The great white thing began to move down the carpet toward him.

"Why comest thou to this palace?"

Toppo found himself gazing at a great white beautiful cloud. Her eyes sparkled like the diamonds and on her head was a rosy crown of sunlight. Toppo answered at last, "Snowball sent me here, but the Pillows stole the Robe. Are you the Queen?"

"Yes," she answered. "I am the Queen."

"I am very angry at the Pillows for stealing the Robe," she continued after a minute, "and I shall do the utmost in my power to punish them."

She frowned, and Toppo noticed the color of her crown changing to deep purple.

Toppo drew away timidly. "You needn't be afraid," she told him kindly. "Tell me. Why did Snowball send you to me?"

"Because," Toppo explained, "I learned so fast he smiled and that made baby dewdrops."

"But who are you?" asked the Queen.

So Toppo told her all about how he had left home, about his canary, about his adventure with Mr. Frog and with the Dewdrops.

When he had finished, the Queen said, "To reward you, I will make you the general of my army. We will fight the Pillows. They try to imitate us because they are so soft. They slip through the cracks in the windows and doors, and when my subjects come to see me, they pretend that one of their white Pillows is the queen. They are much stronger than we are, and have kept us prisoners in this room for months. But you were strong enough to chase them away, and push open the door.

Therefore, I shall make you the general of my army. We shall push through the door, leave the Palace, go out and call all the loyal subjects to aid us in fighting the enemy."

The Queen placed a dazzling white sword in his hand.

Toppo was delighted. He had always loved to play soldier, and now he was going to be the general. He was so happy that he forgot all about hunting for Linny, his canary.

"We'll conquer the enemy, put them in chains, and place you back on your throne, O Cloud-Queen," he promised.

The Queen called all the maidens to her saying, "This is the boy who has promised to save us. He is to be our general. You will do as he says."

The maidens all bowed low before him.

"It won't take long!" Toppo boasted. "Follow me."

He led the way to the door, and they all trooped after him.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Matter" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 21.

The Golden Text was, "The fashion of this world passeth away" (I Cor. 7:31).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like: He is like a man which built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it: for it was founded upon a rock" (Luke 6:47, 48).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The testimony of the material senses is neither absolute nor divine. I therefore plant myself unreservedly on the teachings of Jesus, on the testimony of the prophets, and Mind. Other foundations there are none" (p. 269).

Seek to Establish Communicating System
for Highway Police

An appropriation is to be asked from the next legislature for a communicating system along state roads for the state highway police, with call boxes and red lights to be turned on when sergeants wish to communicate with their motorcycle riders. At present the men work under the direction of a sergeant in each of the 13 districts of the state. While each sergeant has a knowledge of the approximate whereabouts of his patrolmen at all times, he could get in touch with them faster with a call box and red light system than by depending on private telephones. It is also possible that an appropriation of taking advantage of the provision of a law passed by the last legislature, that highways may be lighted. It is believed that lights at intersections and curves might reduce traffic accidents. It might also serve to some extent to prevent crime.

CAST FOR "ADAM AND EVA", JUNIOR PLAY, IS ANNOUNCED TODAY

Orchestra and Mixed Quartette Will Entertain Between Acts

The Junior Class of the A. T. H. S. is on the "eve" of presenting their play "Adam and Eva", a comedy in three acts by Guy Bolton and George Middleton. It will be presented Monday evening, Sept. 29th, at the High School Auditorium at 8 o'clock, under the direction of Miss Lillian Schroeder.

It is a bright and amusing play on the American business man who has a genius for making money but not a trace of talent for managing his own family. The story of a wealthy man, his extravagant, selfish family, clinging dependent upon him and apparently regarding him as bothersome except when he poses pen above check-book. These relatives even arrange with his physician to have him go away on a long trip, so that they may run up bills more freely. In comes the father's young business manager, who tells his employer how he would love a home. The exasperated father suggests that they change places, and puts him in command of the household, himself lighting out for the upper reaches of the Amazon. The young man soon finds himself confronted by the same hurricane of flippancy and terrific bills for lingerie. As a desperate remedy he deduces the family into thinking that father's big rubber business is ruined. In divers and humorous manner they meet the emergency. Of course, it does them all good, and brings out the best in them. "Adam and Eva" is genuine fun.

The cast has been selected as follows:

Mr. James King—a wealthy man—Bob King.
Corinthia—the parlor maid—Catherine Betger.
Clinton de Witt—his son-in-law—John Tellalsha.
Julie de Witt—his elder daughter—Ruth Avery.
Eva King—his younger daughter—Gertrude Hughes.
Aunt Abbie Rocker—his sister-in-law—Dorothy Runyard.
Dr. Jack Delsmater—his neighbor—John Brogan.
Horace Pilgrim—his uncle—Robert Dixon.

Adam Smith—his business manager—Allan Bock.
Lord Andrew Gordon—his would-be son-in-law—Harry Steffenberg.

The double mixed quartette and the orchestra will entertain before the play and between the acts. The orchestra will play "Anchors Aweigh," by Zimmerman, before the first act. Between the second and third acts they will present the "Wedding of the Winds," a waltz, by Hall. The quartette, under the direction of E. V. Jeffers, will sing "Where My Caravan Has Rested" by Lohr, and "Mighty Lak a Rose" by Nevin. Members of the Quartette are Olive Hansen, and Vera Bown, sopranos; Catharine Betger and Gertrude Hughes, altos; Richard Martin and Harry Steffenberg, tenors; and John Tellalsha and Sherman Olson, basses.

The orchestra has been trained by Hans von Holwede, but, as he is unable to be present that evening, it will be directed by Mr. Jeffers.

Local Squad Holds Bensenville to 0-0 Tie; Take on 2 Sat.

In a game which resulted in a 0-0 tie, the local football squad demonstrated that they had absorbed a sufficiency of Coach Reed's football tactics to hold the somewhat heavier team of Bensenville Saturday on the Bensenville field.

In the early part of the game several anticipatory touchdowns were missed through fumbles or misfortune.

Art Class Preparing Reproduction of Byrd's Expedition for the Fair

The Art classes of the Graded Schools are busy at present, working on a miniature reproduction of Commander Byrd's expedition. Each class is making exhibitions of boats, airplanes, dog sleds, radio towers, and anything pertaining to the expedition. The first grade, under the direction of Mrs. Lux has nearly completed work upon a large sailboat, named "The Red Bird". A pennant has yet to be finished and they will also provide a lake, a river, and a bridge. The work will be shown at the Antioch-Lake Villa Poultry and Country fair on Oct. 9, 10, and 11.

The second grade, accompanied by their teacher, Miss Touton, have made several field trips in their study of trees. Some of the children show a surprising knowledge of this kind of lore.

The children in the fifth grade wrote to the fifth grade pupils at Pontiac, Ill., and are now anxiously awaiting replies. One can never tell what the outcome may be. If nothing more results, the young correspondents are learning the art of letter-writing, which though essential to modern business, is an art never acquired by some persons for uses in any way social.

A treat for the sixth grade, in the form of a wiener roast in Harden's woods was greatly enjoyed. They were accompanied by Miss Harwood and Miss Stricker on Wednesday evening.

The seventh grade room with Miss Byrnes held their opening exercises program yesterday morning. Paul Richey played two piano selections, "Connecticut March" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia". Kenneth Mortensen gave several jokes. Each week a committee is appointed to plan the program for the opening exercise, which is held once a week.

A room has been reserved as a Craft Room, or as Miss Warner aptly puts it, "The Grab-bag Room", where the children work on their building projects. The tools are supplied by game occurred during the second quarter, when after the first down, the ball was only four yards from the goal line. It was carried to the "one-inch line" for the second down, and a touchdown seemed almost inevitable. However, a fumble in the third down lost several yards, and another fumble in the fourth removed the ball hopelessly beyond the reach of victory.

Just before the game ended, Norbert Pacini grabbed one of Bensenville's passes, and in a spectacular run, carried the ball to the 15 yard line, but the game ended, defeating another would-be touchdown.

Coach Reed announced that there would be no regulars this season, as there were too many possessing about the same ability. In the Bensenville game, L. Munsell played center; guards were F. Walsh, W. Edwards, and R. Hughes; tackles, F. Hahn and W. Smith; ends, N. Pacini and R. King; halfbacks, J. Brogan and A. Generick; quarterback, T. Fuchs; and full backs, R. McNeil and Allen Bock.

The boys are taking on a double-header Saturday, Sept. 27, when Kenosha and Fox Lake both come to match their skill against the locals. The boys will be divided into two squads.

BRISTOL PEOPLE ARE GIVEN TREAT BY BLIND MUSICIAN

Former Bristol Township Man Passes Away in Kenosha

Miss Leona Jennings of Lincoln, Nebraska, a blind girl who teaches music in a school in New York, gave a piano recital at the Bristol M. E. church Friday evening for the benefit of the Hosmer Cemetery association.

Miss Jennings was persuaded to give this recital while stopping off to visit relatives in Bristol on her way back to New York after the summer vacation.

Miss Jennings visited her cousin, Mrs. Alex Smith, and other relatives.

William Kingman Hollenbeck, 80 years, a native of Kenosha county, died at the home of his daughter, Jessie Newyear, Wednesday night following a short illness.

He was born in Bristol township, Kenosha county, July 19, 1850, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hollenbeck.

Twenty years ago he retired from farming and moved to the village of Pleasant Prairie where he resided until last November when he moved to Kenosha.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Jessie Newyear of Kenosha and Mrs. Isabelle Koch of Culver City, Cal., and four grandchildren, one brother, Derrick Hollenbeck, of Idaho, Kansas.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock from the Hansen funeral home. Interment in the family plot in South Bristol cemetery.

Recent visitors at the Frank Fox home were: Mrs. Lottie Haycock and Mrs. Crowley of Antioch, Claude Simmons of Fond du Lac, Mrs. D. S. Bryan, Gladstone, Ill., Mrs. William Bourdeau and Miss Florence Danks of Evansville, Wis.

Ernest, eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Gillmore, was kicked by a colt Sunday, a gash being cut below the lower lip so that several stitches were required.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Bishop have taken their infant son back to the hospital for further treatment.

Rev. Olson gave his first sermon in the M. E. church Sunday. He will move into the parsonage this week. All are invited to attend next Sunday at 11:00 a. m.

A company of Bristol Epworth League workers were royally entertained Sunday evening by the Kenosha Leaguers. The social hour was followed by a 5:00 o'clock dinner, after which a pageant entitled, "The Challenge of the Cross" was very impressively presented by Kenosha talent. Other representatives were present from Salem, Union Grove, Racine, Burlington and Paris. The company remained for the evening worship by the new pastor of the M. E. church, Rev. Sheppard.

Four Big Ten Schools Invite Scouts to Games

Invitations received at Lake County Scout Headquarters in the County Building within the past few days make a total of four Big Ten Schools which are each inviting members of Boy Scout troops to attend one of the games on its football schedule of this fall.

The additional invitations come from Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois, from Chicago University, Chicago, Illinois, and from the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Wisconsin. The University of Illinois at Urbana, Illinois, had previously invited Lake County Scouts to its opening game with Iowa State College of Ames, Iowa, on Oct. 4th.

The invitation from Director Geo. Little at the University of Wisconsin is for the two games that the Cardinal team has on October 4th with Lawrence College of Appleton, Wisconsin, and Carleton College of Northfield, Minnesota. Chicago University invites Scouts to its games in Chicago on October 4th with Ripon and Hillsdale Colleges.

Northwestern-Center Game Oct. 25

In addition to these fine opening games of the Big Ten season, Scouts will have the opportunity of seeing a good mid-season game when the Praying Colonels of husky little Center College of Kentucky battle Northwestern University, rated by many football critics as the "champions-elect" of the Big Ten, at Evanston, on October 25. Center College will be remembered as the school which a decade ago sent a scrappy team East to stun staid old Harvard and put the little Kentucky institution "on the map."

Admission by Certificate
Admission of Scouts to all of the games named will be by unexpired registration certificates. In addition, they must be accompanied by adult leaders at the ratio of one to every sixteen Scouts.

Scout Rally To Be Held on Sunday

At the monthly meeting of Scout Troop Leaders held Monday night at the Baptist church, Waukegan, the details of the Fall Rally were presented to the leaders by Scout Executive Warren Blodgett. The Rally is to be held at Tannery Field on North Jackson street, Waukegan, on Sunday, September 28.

The troops will assemble under their troop and district officers before 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon of Sunday. At 2:45 Scouts of Troop 9 and Troop 18 will parade the national and council colors. Then the troops will pass in review before Commissioner Otto R. Thompson.

Following the review, a contest in knot-tying will be held. Six scouts from each troop will line up in file, each bringing with him a thirty inch piece of sash cord or the equivalent of it. At a signal, the six Scouts shall tie their pieces together, then the end Scout will tie a bowline at the end of the line that has been made, and pass the line to a seventh Scout of his troop ten feet away. The Scout at the end of the line will be dragged ten feet and the parts of the line will be unfastened and returned to the Scouts who had them at the beginning of contest.

The fourth contest will be a first aid event. Five Scouts from each troop will compete, one to act as patient and the other four as stretcher bearers, after the Scout acting as patient has been picked up by them and placed on a stretcher. Materials for the first aid contestants must include two scout staffs or the equivalent of them and two coats to be used as "filler" for the stretchers. The first aid "teams" will then transport their patients over an obstacle, placed in the center of the field.

The first aid event will be followed by competition in fire-by-friction. There will be no limit as to the number of contestants from each troop, but there will be two sections competing at the same time. One section will be making fires with wood sets, another section will be making fires with flint and steel. Scouts may enter either of the two contests. Points for first, second, and third place will be given for each of the events.

The final competition will be in a water boiling contest. Not more than two Scouts will enter from each troop. Each Scout must bring his own fuel consisting of wood only. The tripod, stick, or whatever device used for holding his "boller" over the fire must be of wood also and erected at the time of the contest. The boiler of the official Scout mess kit, or a similar one, of aluminum, must be used.

Older Scouts will act as scorers, while Deputy Commissioner R. C. McDuffie, Scout Executive Warren Blodgett, and E. L. Walkup of the Recreation Board, will act as judges. Troops will be under the general charge of their district commissioners: Troops 2, 3, 6, 10, and 15 under John Logan Boyles; Troops 1, 5, 16, 11, 14, and 19 under Donald Hains and Eldon Lundy; Troops 9 and 18 under Rev. J. A. Fleming and C. C. Sweetland; Troops 21, 23, 42, 61, and 64 under J. O. H. Lussmann, and Troops 77, 81, 84, and 86 under Coral T. Heydecker.

ILL 20 YEARS; KONJOLA ENDS RHEUMATISM

"Will Never Be Without Famous Medicine", Says
Chicago Man; Four Bottles Brought Relief

MR. WILLIAM MILLER

"I was troubled with rheumatism for twenty years," said Mr. William Miller, 4914 Irving avenue, North Chicago. "This became so bad that I was forced to use a cane. I could scarcely work or walk and the pains were so severe that it was out of the question to obtain restful sleep at night. I tried many medicines and treatments without finding any permanent relief. I have now taken four bottles of Konjola and I no longer require a cane to get about. Most of the pain has left my legs and shoulders. I shall continue with Konjola until my recovery is complete. I will never be without this great medicine."

It is recommended that Konjola be taken for from six to eight weeks in order to secure the best results. Allments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness soon yield to its power.

Konjola is sold in Antioch, Illinois, at S. H. Reeves' drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

My Trip With The Gold Star Mothers To France

BY MRS. MARY A. MANN

Returning from the reception to our hotel, we were taken over some very beautiful streets, and were instructed to be packed for our next day's journey, and for a four days' stay at our cemetery. The following day, June 30th, the thirty members of the Somme cemetery group with the captain, interpreter and nurse were driven to St. Quentin, 11 miles from the cemetery, in two large busses driven by efficient Frenchmen. We arrived at 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon, ate supper at 6:00 o'clock and retired early.

The next morning we proceeded to the Somme cemetery where we marched silently and reverently to the final resting places of our beloved sons. This day was one of the most beautiful and inspiring days of my life. . . . bright sunshine, a deep blue sky, fleecy clouds which seemed to shelter us, and under our feet the green grass like a velvet carpet. The graves had all been leveled to equal rank, and marked by beautiful white marble crosses for the Gentiles and by "Star and David" for the Hebrews. Each monument was marked with the name, army rank, date and place of death if known. Stones have been placed at the graves of unidentified soldiers, bearing the inscription, "Here rests in honored glory, an American soldier known but to God." Each Mother was presented with a beautiful wreath of roses, carnations, daisies and ferns, a gift of our government. This act was very comforting, and was much appreciated by the Mothers, as it gave them an opportunity to place a wreath upon the grave of her hero.

The scenery in and around this Somme cemetery approaches perfection. . . . margins of shrubbery, trees and flower beds, graveled driveways, and flowers everywhere; beds of pansies, forget-me-nots, daisies, baby's breath, bordered with foliage of all colors and tiny flowers.

The Mayor of St. Quentin held a reception at the Town Hall, in honor of the Gold Star Pilgrims on the second day. After an address of welcome we were each presented with a beautiful spray of roses, carnations, poppies, daisies, cornflowers and ferns by the St. Quentin War Mothers. We took the flowers to the cemetery after lunch and placed them upon the graves of our boys. Willard's row is 15, grave 4, Block D.

We took our departure of this cemetery, feeling that our sons were sleeping in peace; and that their names will be honored through all the ages.

After leaving the cemetery on June 4th, we went on a sight-seeing trip over some of the war-stricken area. In fact, we were constantly in the "war zone", but as much of the devastated territory has been reconstructed, we were unable to realize that war had raged over there fields until we were taken to the shell-torn grounds that have been purchased by the Canadians, and preserved in the war-time condition. Vinny Ridge is a part of this area, which contains German trenches as well as Canadian. We were taken down a short distance into the German trenches. Everywhere lay the evidences of destruction, but of course, time and nature have softened the worst aspects of these horrors and atrocities. We moved on through Albert to Amiens.

It was here that Willard was killed August 9, 1918.

An English general addressed us and afterwards we were permitted to ask questions of him. One of the Mothers requested to know where the Contay cemetery was located where her son was first buried. He showed her the location on a map, and explained why she could not go there, thus causing her to realize more fully than ever before what the boys had endured.

Our trip from Paris, starting June 1st, took us through beautiful country, the roads being lined by double rows of trees. In those places where the trees had been destroyed during the war, new ones had been planted and are being carefully tended.

We passed through Chantilly, Senlis, Compiègne and the Woods where Marshall Foch's car still stands. The Armistice was signed in this car on November 11th, 1918.

"Chevrolet Chronicles" to Be Broadcast Nationally Soon

Baston of the Fifth Marines describing those stirring events in Chateau Thierry back in 1918 which brought him the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix de Guerre and the Naval Cross, will go on the air over four Chicago broadcasting stations beginning Sunday, October 5. The program may be heard over WBBM at 6:00 p. m. and over WMAQ at 7:00 p. m. Central Standard Time, Sunday, October 5; WLS, 1:20 p. m., Thursday, Oct. 9, and WOFL 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, October 9.

The "Chronicles" are being broadcast nationally through more than a hundred radio stations.

12 o'Clock to be 12 o'Clock to Both Lake and Antioch Residents

If an Antioch resident should be accosted by a lake or city dweller inquiring the time at 2:00 a. m. Sunday morning, Sept. 28, he may reply with no fear of being misunderstood, that it is 2:00 o'clock a. m. He will not have to explain that it is 2:00 o'clock Central Standard time, because every clock in the Central division will record that very time, unless its owner was forgetful, or too sleepy to bother to turn the hands back an hour.

If it is Printing
we can do it
and do it right

"May I see a copy of the latest edition of the News," inquired a bright, fine appearing young man as he entered this office Friday morning. After scrutinizing the pages for a few moments, he said: "I was looking for the advertisements of the local food stores." Informed that he was doomed to disappointment for there had not been such an ad in the Antioch News for the last six months, the man stood speechless for a while, registering something or other, and remarked as he departed—"and this is A. D. 1930."

Yesterday morning at sunrise an army of armed hunters advanced upon an army of the feathery tribe in the nearby lakes. Among the casualties were several hundred coots (mudhens) and a few of the earlier larger ducks. Many venturesome, or lawless souls, unable to wait for the official opening of the season at sunrise fired too soon. At Grass Lake 76 arrests for this violation were reported.

Hunting costs the American sportsmen an enormous total each year. Considered from the financial angle, computing the cost of poor marksmanship, travel, hotel, and other expenses for equipment, a little mudhen, and not very good eating at that, costs about $70. How many, please?

But never mind, hunting is not the only expensive sport. What does your golf cost per stroke, or per hole?

Whoopie also come high in the resort region?

All these luxuries make for profitable business, but none of them may be considered essential. Take golf, hunting and whoopie away from the region and business would suffer. Eliminate the various "rackets" and trade would dwindle to a small percent of the volume now done in Antioch and other lake resort towns.

Cedar Lake Store Is Robbed of $80

Mrs. Walter Laurell, of the "Pink Puppy" store at Cedar Lake, was the victim of a hold-up early Saturday morning, when three armed bandits stole into the store, and possessed themselves of $80.

According to Al Maier, who owns a garage near the Laurell place, near Lake Villa, Mrs. Laurell was aroused from sleep and told to remain motionless or she would be killed. She was terrorized so badly that she did not inform anyone until a considerable time had elapsed after the bandits' departure. Walter Laurell then put in a call to Sheriff Doolittle.

Trial of Coverston Murderer Will Be Delayed Until Nov.

The murder trial of Frank Clower, Waukegan ex-barber, will probably be continued until November term of the Kenosha county circuit court, as the docket of the October court is filled to the limit now. He is now being held in the Kenosha county jail without bond.

Clower is charged with the murder of Eugene Coverston, of Waukegan, at his roadside on Sheridan road, just over the state line, on July 26. He shot Coverston following a quarrel, according to the testimony given at the inquest by Floyd Coverston, brother of the slain man. Clower claims that he shot in self-defense, but Floyd denies this.

Maid Bitterly Regrets Borrowing Sparklers-- After They Are Stolen

Making an impression by "stepping out" decked in $100,000.00 worth of her mistress' jewels is not all that it is cracked up to be, Miss Lois Hyde is now convinced. An impression was made all right, but upon another man, who lifted a portion of the jewels valued at $20,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Mauermann, Lake Marie, were spending the weekend at their cottage at Lake Marie, leaving their city home in charge of Miss Hyde, who took advantage of the trust imposed in her to don her mistress' sparklers, and sail down to a cafe on west Erie street, where she met the bartender. On leaving the place they were held up, part of the jewels being "hooked". She entrusted the remainder of her ill-gotten gains to the first policeman she met, and caused herself to be arrested.

"Globe Trotters" Drawn to Old City of Genoa

Genoa, one of the most magnificent cities in the world, as Venice may be one of the most beautiful, has suddenly been interesting to the globe trotter, and there is no city in the world that has streets of palaces for proportion and perfection of form as perfect, nor a sea more sapphire blue.

Byron lived two years in the old Saluzzo palace and worked on his canvas of "Don Juan." Its hoary gray stones have gazed upon a sea of pictures. Barbarossa stormed the city. It saw Richard the Lionhearted, and John, with the Crusaders; it saw Louis XII of France ride by, when Genoa was forced to hail him as master.

Napoleon raided her precincts. President Wilson and many a group of khaki-clad soldiers of the American expeditionary forces have stood and admired the great gray masses of stone.

Amazed by Flies' Absence

A six-year-old girl from a poor neighborhood recently enjoyed a day's outing at the Country club home of a woman interested in social work. Tired of playing in the yard, the child went into the house and presently fell into a perplexed silence.

"Where are your flies?" she asked at length.

"We haven't any," said the woman.

"We've got millions," said the little girl. "It doesn't seem like home."

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. They lunch together and recall their school days. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. The love-making progresses rapidly.

But she did not see him the next day, although she waited at their rendezvous for an hour past the time. Nor the next day. By the third day she was filled with deep dismay and fear. All sorts of questions whirled through her mind. Perhaps he had tired of her. It might be that the affair had run out for him, that he had never intended to make more than a sweetheart out of her.

But she had only to think of his bright honorable face to know that there was some other reason behind his attitude. She had only to think of his eager kisses to know that he cared. She called him on the telephone at his home, at ten o'clock. His mother answered and said, in a low voice, that he was sleeping.

"Would you waken him. It's important," she said, and stood shaking in the telephone booth, until she heard his voice, husky with sleep.

"This is Ernestine," she said, trembling.

At once there was an electric silence, and then he said, in a voice now thoroughly awake:

"Well?"

She could have cried. "What's the matter, Will? Aren't you going to see me again?"

"Where are you?"

"I'm at the drug store, at Wilson and Sheridan."

"I'll be there within an hour," he told her.

He had not had breakfast, he said, shaking hands with her formally when they met. They went into a little white tiled coffee shop, and he ordered his breakfast and sat opposite her in silent waiting. He looked terrible. His face, often white, was ravaged, and his eyes burned. But he was calm. He had reached some decision, and Ernestine knew that the initiative rested on her.

"What's the matter, Will?" she asked him, trembling again, and hating herself for it. It was awful to be such a slave.

"Your mother phoned me yesterday."

"Mamma?"

"Sure—she asked me to come there to tea this afternoon. I told her I had to work. Didn't you know she was going to ask me? I thought perhaps you told her to invite me," said Will.

A little light dawned in Ernestine's mind.

"Is that the trouble?" she asked. "Do you think I ought to have invited you to my home?"

"Well," he said slowly, "why shouldn't you—unless you were ashamed of me?"

How could she explain without wounding him?

"But you see, Will—it has nothing to do with being ashamed. My first thought was to tell the folks, but then, it seemed they might disapprove of our friendship, and I want to keep it."

"But don't you see, Ernestine, I can't meet you any more, like this—out on the street, and in the library, and in restaurants and tearooms? I can't do that to your parents. If they don't want you to go with me, I can't coax you to do it—clandestinely."

"Your mother's been telling you all this."

"Yes," he said. "I confided in her. She showed me how it looks."

"Well, then, that's all there is to it. You aren't willing to make the effort to be friends that I am. You don't understand how they'd be. They'd be so nice and so reasonable—and they'd separate us. Just as sure as fate. You don't know them as I do. It wouldn't be your character they'd object to, or your folks. It would be your position and your lack of money and such things. Anyhow, it seems to be a little late to—to—" she faltered into silence.

Will looked at her with agitation.

"What do you mean—it's late, Ernestine?" he demanded.

But she could only look at him. If he did not understand, she could not explain.

"You mean—you care?" he asked a little breathlessly, and she smiled tremulously.

"What did you think?" she asked him.

"I didn't think, I guess," he said. "I never meant to make you love me—it was so natural. I shouldn't have touched you."

"But you did, Will."

"Let's go," he said, and paid the bill.

They walked out, swept now into a unity which had been increased, not broken, by their talk. They walked a half mile or so and came to a deserted bonthouse, where they sat down side by side upon an upturned row-bent.

"You see, Ernestine," he told her solemnly, "we just kind of jumped into it all. But it's real with me. It's love—and marriage, with me. I never thought much about such things—just took you at what you were willing to give. Everybody has dates out around town, and I didn't want to go to your house especially, nor think about that. And then, we got to carling—and as soon as I began to think about you as my wife, I began to think about all these other things: your money, your family position, and the darned Briceland pride that I know more about than you do. And then, I wondered why you never took me home. And finally I talked to my mother. And I made up my mind to quit."

"Without even giving me a chance?" she asked him.

She was in his arms now, and he said to her:

"Will you marry me, Ernestine?"

"Of course. Today, if you like."

"You'll have to tell your folks first," he insisted.

"Oh, Will," she cried. "Don't stand with them against me. They'll separate us. Why do you suppose they asked you to the house today, if not to find out about you and how intimate our friendship had become, and to begin the business of breaking it up? I know." She told him what papa said about Sadie Hall and the actor Delaney. His arms grew slack about her. He sat a little away, now, distraught, silent.

"They'll think I've persuaded you. They'll think I've won the money, that I'm seeking for myself," he protested.

"If I thought you could live on what I make—but you don't know anything about money. You don't know how hard it is for two people—living on twenty-five dollars a week. I don't know what to do, but I want to do what's right."

He looked most forlorn sitting there, thinking, pondering, trying to contemplate a future without her, trying to reconcile his own pride and self-esteem with the position her family put him into.

"I should never have kissed you," he exclaimed. "I should never have loved you."

"Will," said Ernestine tenderly, "you couldn't help that."

For now his sad confusion had caught her in the grip of her first passion. Now she lived in terrible fulfillment the promise her throbbing heart had made weeks ago, when she had talked to Lillian about marriage. Her heart leaped in her like a thing threatened with mortal danger. She flung herself upon him precipitously, her arms strained round his neck. He caught her and held her close. All his being flared up in answer to her own emotion, and his lips sprang to hers in a kiss that was as new to them as though they had never touched each other before. It was a promise.

"Take me today, Will," she cried, and tears streamed down her face.

"Now, quickly, before anybody can say a word to us, before they can be reasonable and reassuring and competent about us. Take me and hold me, now, quickly and secretly. I promise you I'll live on what you earn. I promise I'll take my chance with you—completely. I'll never let them have reason to say that you wanted anything but me. Whatever you have is all I'll have, Will. I promise—"

She was crying wildly. He was shaking, as she was, but he laughed a little, and wiped her cheeks with his own clean handkerchief.

"The lady promises, Judge," he said, and kissed her and laughed at her and tensed her. "The lady promises never to sue me for more than a million a year alimony. The lady promises—"

He picked her up and set her on her feet.

"Come on, then—let's do it now," he cried, and seized her wrist and ran, pulling her along.

It was almost evening when Will and Ernestine came to the Briceland house. In the downstairs drawing room the lamps glowed softly. She had telephoned mamma that she was in town for lunch and would come out with Will at five. Beyond Lillian, Ernestine could see Loring's square shoulders.

They ran up the steps, hand in hand, and at the door Will gave her a reassuring hug and kissed her cheek.

"Let me do the talking," he whispered, and they went on into the hall and ran into the drawing and living room. Ernestine was aware at once that the swift kiss Will had imprinted on her cheek had been seen, for papa was flushed and hostile, and mamma looked at her in pale reproach.

"Mamma," said Ernestine, "do you remember Will Todd?"

Mamma gave Will her hand, and he moved awkwardly forward, looking shabby and ill at ease beside the magnificence and self-possession of papa and Loring.

"We've been talking about you," mamma said to Will. "I don't know until yesterday that you were such friends with my little girl. I'm sorry you haven't been here sooner."

Will murmured something, and Ernestine introduced him to her grandmother, who looked at him severely and gave a slight snort of recognition, and then Lillian came and offered him her hand and said she remembered him. The two men straddling the hearth acknowledged the introduction with silent handshakes. Mamma asked Will to sit down and rang for tea.

Ernestine, full of guilt, sat down close beside him and turned to speak to mamma.

The conversation moved haltingly as they waited for tea. Papa, somewhat maliciously, asked Will about his father.

"He's well," Will answered in a calm natural voice. "But my mother has been almost an invalid for a year now. We feel very anxious about her."

"We are sorry to learn that," said mamma, and then went on quickly: "What have you two children been doing all day?"

There was a dramatic pause, but Ernestine took it up quickly.

"Mamma, you forget that I am twenty now."

They laughed politely. The tea-wagon came, mamma poured tea for them all, and they talked of things about which Will knew nothing. Ernestine could see how they were making him feel like an outsider. Sitting in the deep chair, his long legs drawn up before him, Will was not so disturbing. Her heart was full of tender loyalty.

"You have changed a great deal," mamma said to Will. "You used to be a shy little boy."

"I don't feel very shy today," he told her, and smiled at Ernestine.

His bright black eyes, like shiny bits of anthracite, under his white, domelike forehead, were beautiful, but Ernestine knew that the others could see nothing but his queer clothes.

"Tell them, Will," she said at last, putting down her cup and taking his from him.

They all stopped, and turned startled faces toward the two. Will squared himself and turned first to mamma.

"We've gone and done it," he said, smiling.

"Gone and done what?" asked mamma sharply, and her pallor startled them all.

"We've gone and got married—today."

"Married! Who?"

It was papa's voice, harsh, protesting.

"Ernestine and I," answered Will steadily, and Loring said, "Married!" in a hoarse, incredulous tone, and Ernestine, looking up, saw his face, as pale as mamma's, and as startled, with deep chagrin and consternation written on it. But none of the others noticed him.

"You see," said Ernestine gently, "we were engaged anyhow, and when mamma invited Will to tea, today, I thought we might just as well make it an announcement party."

"You thought!"

"Certainly, papa. It was my idea."

Claims Elephant Leads Beasts in Intelligence

The question of the relative intelligence of our so-called "dumb" beasts seems to be one to which there is no end. Wherever animal men gather the controversy wages hot and furious. "I think elephants are the most intelligent of all animals," says Hubbard Nye, writing in Liberty Magazine. "I realize this opens an argument, for every man who has worked in a circus or menagerie may think otherwise."

"My contention," continues Nye, "is that elephants show more intelligence in learning to work. In twenty minutes you can teach an elephant to plow a cornfield and not stop on a single shoot. The big beast's intelligence shines brightest in vaudeville work. He is the only animal capable of going through his stunts without a trainer and without cues."

"The three-ton star will stand back-stage waiting for his act for an hour and a half, placid, thinking his elephant thoughts, while property men shift scenery right under his trunk and chorus girls go scuttling around him. You can lead him between the most fragile sets of gauze, and he won't hurt a thing."

The Name in Her Mirror

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

DORIS GRAHAM had returned to spend the summer at the quiet, cliff-built summer resort where she had been so carefree and happy five years before.

"But isn't it a stupid place to live in for three months?" asked her chum in the office.

"It wouldn't suit you," admitted Doris.

"And that dreadful trip every day" lamented the other girl.

Doris was not to be discouraged. She wanted to get away from the city, wanted to sleep in the country, wake up in the country, have her Sundays and Saturday afternoons in the open.

And so she had established herself in the plain, old country boarding house that she had lived in when her mother was with her and life looked rosy and merry.

Now, she was tired, a trifle discouraged at the lack of variety in her life. There was a vacancy she could not quite analyze, but she ascribed it to the fact that she could not get accustomed to living without her dear mother.

On her first free Saturday afternoon, she wandered about the old village streets, stopping here and there to linger under a familiar tree, stooping to gather a wayside blossom.

"I'll just go down to the post office to wait for the distribution of the late mail," she said to herself, as she neared the little group of shops of which one was the post office.

It was as she was entering the post office five years ago that she had first seen Archie Olmstead. The thought no longer hurt straight to her heart.

What had become of him? Why had she never heard from him?

How many times she had asked herself that question only to find herself unanswered.

She found a letter for her from the girl in the office who, secretly, would have enjoyed being with Doris, but who hesitated to invite herself.

Doris, thrilled at receiving a letter from the hands of the same postmaster who had stood behind the window thumbing the letters five years before, stood beside the scratched and disfigured wall to read it.

As some one pushed against her, she moved. She bumped her head, ever so slightly, against the corner of the glass-faced wall cabinet that held unclaimed letters.

For a moment she stared at the envelopes posted inside. Suddenly, she stared. There was her own name—Doris Graham.

Hastily, she sought the postmaster and told him that there was a letter in the case that was addressed to her. Together, they got it and Doris, fearing, somehow, to read it in the midst of so many eyes as were upon her at this mail hour in the village, put it in her bag.

When she was alone she opened the envelope. It was a letter from Archie. In it he told her this was the third one he had written and if he received no answer this time he would decide that she had amused herself for a summer by making him fall in love with her.

If she wrote one letter over that week end to Archie, she wrote a dozen. None suited her. She could not seem to find words in which to tell him all that had been in her thoughts of him, since they had met. She wondered where he was. Could this address be the right one?

On Monday at the office she tried again, this time on her typewriter. It was a stupid letter. She destroyed it.

It was still light when she arrived in the country these June nights and she decided that she would be able to pen a short note to Archie if she used the post office pen and ink on the old shelf desk where they had written each other so many tender notes in other days. With a piece of paper in her bag, she went to the village and wrote to Archie. As she stood looking at the much-used blotter on the shelf, her handbag open with its mirrored back, a familiar scrawl was reflected in it.

She held the mirror over the blotted name. Yes—it was his name in his handwriting. Her heart thumped madly. He must be here—in this very town—now. The name had been written that day.

Posting the letter she had written, she hurried back to the boarding house.

When the motherly old landlady came forward, she saw that they had met on the walk leading through the arch of maples. She had remembered their early romance. She was gratified at its renewal.

It took the whole evening to explain the strange tricks fate had played them during the years of their separation. But the faith of each of them was unshaken and Doris found herself later comparing the great happiness of her present summer with the shallow, frivolous gaiety of that holiday five years ago.

"And I knew all the time," Doris heard from her chum at the office, "that there must be some good reason for your craving for that stupid summer resort—some other reason than the country air."

Is it?

Another way to make your wife suffer is to mutter over a letter and then thrust it in your pocket without comment.—Exchange.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is expelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

Elfin Oak for Kiddies

The children who play in Kensington gardens, London, are to be surprised with a fairy oak figure. An ancient oak was hauled into the park and an artist, Ivor Innes, converted the root into a great gnome. Innes secured the idea when in the country, where he noticed a root which with a few dabs of paint became a perfect little knip.

K-R-O (Kills Rats Only), writes Mr. —, Hulbert, Okla., brought this remarkable result. K-R-O is the original product made from squill, an ingredient recommended by U. S. Government as sure death to rats and mice but harmless to dogs, cats, poultry or even baby chicks. You can depend on K-R-O (Kills Rats Only), which has become America's leading rat exterminator in just a few years. Sold by all druggists on a money back guarantee.

Glass Pictures Produced

Stained glass of different colors may be fused into one picture by a process just invented by Basil R. Bayne, an artist of Gerard's Cross, England. The invention is regarded in England as the greatest development in the technique of stained glass since the earliest days of the art. It is claimed that the use of leadwork and enamels is eliminated, and that the new glass can be produced more cheaply than other forms of pictures in glass.

Wild Turkeys Increase

The protection of the wild turkey hen during all seasons for the last 10 years has brought Alabama to the top in the production of wild turkeys. Along with Texas, Alabama has far surpassed the neighboring states in wild turkeys, according to a survey made by the Wild Turkey Conservation league.

Naples and Its Bay

Mt. Vesuvius as Seen From Naples.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

WHILE not the center of the recent destructive Italian earthquake, Naples and the towns around its beautiful bay suffered considerable damage from the tremors. And that which harms Naples, with its almost perfect arrangement of sky, sea and mountains, harms one of the principal "Journey's ends" of the world. Anything likely to alter this setting is of more than passing concern to thousands of former visitors, as well as to residents.

When the Neapolitan advertises, with the sloganizer's modesty, "See Naples and then die," he has in mind, of course, the city and surroundings taken as a whole. The city alone, although the largest and most populous in the Italian peninsula, is a hodge-podge of narrow streets and tenement houses, teeming with life and gaiety; sordid, yet possessed with a vast vitality. In buildings and monuments of historic and artistic interest, however, Naples cannot vie with the towns of central and northern Italy.

Naples is comparatively young among cities of the Mediterranean. In the eighth century B. C. Greek colonists from the nearby city of Kyne recognized the superior advantages of its great half-moon bay and laid the foundations for later Roman settlements. In time the district became the favorite residence of Roman magnates. Augustus frequently resided at Naples and Virgil completed some of his most beautiful poetry here.

Before the days of a united Italy, Naples was the capital of the kingdom of Naples. A large royal palace, with white marble stairways and a throne room filled with art treasures, bears witness to its former imperial wealth. Today Naples is Italy's most important seaport, connected by fast steamship lines with every part of the globe. Its streets are lined with factories, large and small, while the surrounding farm districts are fertile and productive. As a tourist center it is surpassed, probably, only by Paris.

Dirty But Picturesque.

For all its commercialism, dirt and squalor, however, Naples is extremely picturesque. Rising in amphitheater fashion on the slopes of the hills in the northeast corner of the bay of Naples the city is full of quaint, steep streets, where broad steps take the place of the slab paving of the downtown thoroughfares. Following the cholera epidemic in 1884 many of the narrow streets and high balconied tenement houses were replaced with broad avenues and standard buildings.

It is in the remaining canyon streets, however, that one finds the most typical Neapolitan scenes. All Naples lives outdoors—to cook, to work, to play, to gossip, and almost to dress! Street singers with their mandolins, charcoal sellers and vendors of sweets and drinks add their colorful bits to the daily pageantry. Macaroni factories line the streets of the eastern part of the city, the fringes of macaroni on racks collecting a little of the dust every passing automobile and push cart stirs up.

For whatever the city lacks in neatness and beauty, its famous bay more than makes amends. The bay of Naples is a yardstick of marine perfection. Few who have seen the bay of Naples will grant that it is eclipsed elsewhere for spacious and perfect loveliness. Its dreamy headlands and the incomparable contour of Vesuvius in the center at once distinguish and sublimize it.

Fascinating to Visitors.

Many lovers of Italy feel that a country like Tuscany, with its softer colorings and gentler contours, is more restful and somehow more wholesome to live with, and that the Neapolitan scenery is too much like theater curtains come to life. Nevertheless, every person who arrives at Naples under fair skies and beholds this littoral for the first time cannot help being affected by its loveliness.

Many of the visitors feel something deeper than admiration; for them all of the coast scenery from Miseno to Salerno has a strange and lasting fascination. Then there are the siren worshippers who have heard the mystic song and are content to let body and soul rest here forever; and to such willing victims of the picturesque,

Naples is not a noisy, nerve-racking modern city, full of beggars and rogues and fleas; it is the old "new city"—Neapolis.

In the bay of Naples the very atmosphere, to such Neapolitan specialists, seems more bland and limpid than elsewhere on the peninsula, lending to the distances a more magical and haunting charm; the curving shore is picked out and decorated with countless beauties, and high mountains descend abruptly to a tideless sea streaked with color, in which are set ethereal lilac-tinted islands.

From the Monastery of San Martino, overlooking Naples, a picture spectacle is spread. The great, blue, half-moon bay, dotted with red and white sails, and surrounded by a mountainous coast line, which fringes off into the Mediterranean at each end in rocky islets, looks more like a stage curtain than a reality. It is Vesuvius that "makes" the bay of Naples.

Lovely Colors on the Bay.

From Vesuvius, with the ruins of Pompeii at its base, the eye follows the curving shore line to the mountainous Sorrento peninsula, purple and hazy in the distance, ending with rocky crags of the Island of Capri. At sunset the colors are so rich, and at the same time so soft, it seems hardly possible that they are real. The bay is a rippling sheet of gray and green and blue. The rocky headlands and islands are the softest and most delicate lavender. A rolling stream of purple smoke rises from the crater of Vesuvius and floats across the sky, while, in the background, billowy pink clouds catch the last rays of the blood-red sun as it drops into the Mediterranean.

To many observers the fairest of the Neapolitan gems is the Island of Capri that lies in the blue waters just off the tip of the Sorrentine peninsula. From high in air to below the waterline the island is scarred and pitted with myriad vast pockmarks, some pillared with stalactites and stalagmites, some through which the never-quiet sea moans and sobs with the agonized wall of a hurt monster; one white, with little pools of pure, sweet water on its floor, only a few inches above the sea; one greener than emerald; one blue as heaven with row upon row of delicate pink corals and tiny scarlet jelly-fish studding the waterline like jewels, while the refraction of the sunlight tints everything with the most marvelously diaphanous color, through which the silvery ripples of the bottom sand, about 40 feet below, seem within arm's length.

Back on the mainland, the traveler can find beauties along this delightful coast even south of the bay. As he drives up over the crest of the Sorrentine peninsula the Siren Islands loom in the distance, too far away for even the echo of the charmers' song to be heard. At Positano the road divides into two white ribbons, binding the town to the green hillside.

Scenes Along the Coast.

On by the caves of troglodytes, who have all the comforts of home—little patches of garden, amiable goats, olive groves, and grape-arbors—the road winds in and out, up and down the stern face of the cliffs, rising and sinking in great billowy sweeps, plunging hastily through short, black tunnels, racing around big and little bends. Now it skirts the shoulder of a cliff, with only an 18-inch wall between the wheels and the boulders hundreds of feet below.

Picturesque watch-towers stud the shore, ancient defenses against the Barbary corsairs. And then presently Amalfi, once the brave little maritime republic that maintained its independence so long in defiance of princes and emperors. In a low cleft of the hills the houses fairly pile upon one another, as though there were not room for them all on the hillside. Back on the mist-veiled crags loom other towns, and all day long, down the road that winds dizzily among the peaks, come old women and young girls, staggering under heavy loads of fagots gathered in the woods above the clouds. And when they are not carrying fagots they are always knitting—even when there is no war!

On the streets, in shops, gardens, fishing boats on the beach, gossiping by the fountain before the long stair that leads to the stately black and white and mosaic Cathedral of St. Andrew.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Origin of the Stars and Stripes

AT THE outbreak of the American Revolution most of the states adopted flags of their own. The Connecticut troops who participated in the battle of Bunker Hill had a banner bearing the coat of arms of their state with the motto, "Qui Transtulit Sustinet." The Massachusetts troops fought under the words, "An Appeal to Heaven," while early New York records allude to other different standards. The men at Lexington had neither uniforms nor flags, but at Bunker Hill, two months later, the Colonial troops presented much more the appearance of an organized army.

Later came the "Beware" and "Don't Tread On Me" flags and the snake flag was used by the southern states from 1776 to June, 1777. A chain of thirteen links, a ring, a tiger and a field of wheat were also used as fighting devices.

In October, 1775, Washington wrote to two officers who were about to take command of cruisers: "Please fix on some flag by which our vessels may know each other." The first "striped flag" is said to have been flung to the breeze at Washington's headquarters at Cambridge, Mass., in January, 1776. This flag had thirteen stripes, alternating red and white. But was this the first American flag?

John Paul Jones has left it on record that the "flag of America" was hoisted by his own hand on his vessel, the Alfred, this being the first time that this emblem was ever displayed on a man of war, but no exact date for the display of the Jones flag is given. It may have been before the Washington flag at Cambridge or after, but it was undoubtedly before the adoption of a flag by congress on June 14, 1777. In fact, although June 14 is celebrated as "Flag Day," there seems to be considerable reason to doubt that that is the correct day for the anniversary.

According to the available records, congress adopted a resolution on June 14, 1777, which read as follows: "Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." But there is not the slightest evidence to show who introduced this resolution or whether one word of discussion was evoked concerning it. The "resolution was adopted," according to the records. Therefore it must have been sponsored by some one, but his name is lost to history and, while the resolution was "adopted" by congress on June 14, it was not officially promulgated by the secretary until September 3 of the same year.

It is claimed that the first use of the stars and stripes in actual military service was at Fort Stanwix in 1777. On August 2 of that year the fort was besieged by the British and Indians and the garrison being without a flag, one was made in the fort. The red was from strips of a petticoat furnished by a woman, the white was from skirts torn up for the purpose and the blue was a piece of Col. Peter Gansevoort's military coat.

There are several available answers to the question: "What suggested the Stars and Stripes?" Some authorities maintain that Washington found in the coat of arms of his own family a hint from which he designed the flag, this device being two red bars on a white ground, with three gold stripes above the top bars. This is not mentioned by Washington himself, however, in spite of the fact that his carefully kept diaries furnish ample evidences of all other prominent events in his career.

It cannot be questioned, though, that the United States is largely indebted to the first President for the present flag, but none of the questions in doubt with respect to the Stars and Stripes will ever be settled to the satisfaction of every one, for the three chief points of discussion remain: When was the first American flag as we now understand it unfurled? Who suggested it? Who made the first one that was used? Until these are accurately and completely answered the origin of the Stars and Stripes must be listed among the unsolved mysteries of American history.

Got His Pipe Back

Two years ago a Holyoke, Mass., man lost a favorite pipe on a fishing trip near North Dana. This year he visited the same district for the first time since the loss of the pipe, and stopped at a little store where he had bought ice cream on the former trip. As he entered the store the elderly woman in charge asked him if he left a pipe there some time ago. He said he might have. His pipe was produced from one of the shelves, and the fisherman went on his way impressed with the storekeeper's memory.

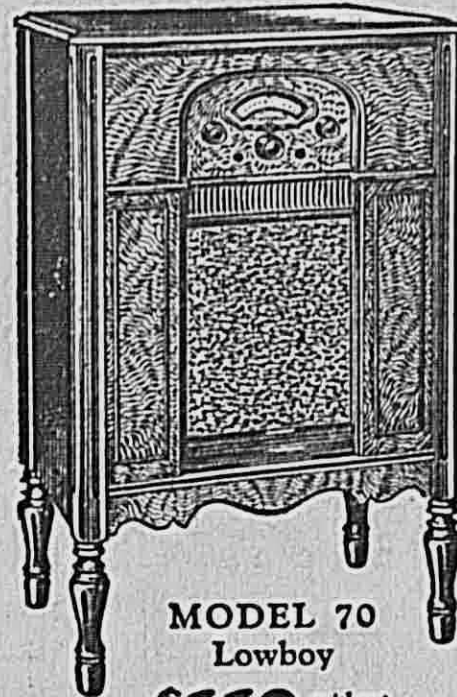

Game of Chance

Two parishioners were discussing the morals of their respective parish priests. "Our clergyman," said one, "is so straight that he won't even perform a marriage ceremony." "Goodness," replied the other, "what has that got to do with his morals?" "He says his conscience will not allow him to participate in any game of chance!"

Ellnor Glyn at a Los Angeles tea was condemning modern morals.
"For these morals," she said, "it isn't our young folks, but their parents, who are to blame."

"A young chap was sitting beside a pretty girl in the moonlight.

Debt That World Owes to English Naturalist

The first man to dream of treating the sea as a gigantic food farm was the famous English naturalist Frank Buckland, who was born in 1820 and died in 1880. During the last 20 years of his life he never tired of impressing upon his countrymen the importance of the fisheries and the need for wider knowledge of the habits of fish. He was the first to look ahead and conceive the idea of fish culture.

Though it is usually caught in rivers, the salmon is really a sea fish. It ascends the rivers to spawn, and the young salmon spends two years of its life in fresh water before going down to the sea.

Buckland found that nature's methods in the breeding of salmon were extraordinarily wasteful, not more than perhaps one egg in 10,000 ever producing a fish that grew to maturity. By introducing a scientific system he was able to bring about a wonderful increase in many of our great fisheries, and it is largely due to his early work that the salmon has been introduced successfully into such distant countries as New Zealand.—London Tit-Bits.

Glass-Bottomed Boat Fast

Fitted with a glass bottom for the study of the sea floor, a scientific ark will soon take to the shallow Pacific waters, along the Oregon shore. Running aground has no terrors for this strange craft, for it can crawl along the bottom propelled by four caterpillar treads like those of a tractor, says Popular Science Monthly. Its speed is 50 feet a minute. The boat is the invention of G. F. McGowan of Portland, Ore. It is 42 feet long, and is powered with a 75 horse power gasoline motor.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat in 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "it's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.
